

Hot or Cold? Portable or Electric?

Figuring out whether to choose a commercial or home use pressure washer is not very difficult, you just need to take a few things into consideration.

If you are planning to use your power washer less than 100 hours per year, you probably can use a household electric pressure washer.

If your need require use of the power washing equipment for more than 100 hours per year, you will need to go for a commercial or industrial power washer, usually starting at 2000 PSI and 3GPM and up, as they are designed to sustain intensive use.

Ask your power washer supplier to recommend a top quality unit that will last over time and give you a good return on your investment.
